

WHILE IN ANCIENT KOREA GUESTS WERE EXPECTED TO BRING A GOLD RING AS A GIFT (TO PAY FOR THE CHILD'S EDUCATION IN THE FUTURE), TODAY YOU CAN BE A LITTLE LESS EXTRAVAGANT BUT MORE CREATIVE. HERE, SOME IDEAS.

Turtle Papers

Jennifer Tam took her graphic designing skills and created a sassy line of stationery and baby gear. We love the hip, not-too-cutesy sensibility.

Turtle Papers invitations, "Hippo" tee and "Girly" long sleeve tee.

Babysoy

Babysoy, co-founded by Amy Liang, specializes in soybean fiber, an eco-friendly fiber that utilizes a renewable natural resource as raw material. Soybean fiber is being touted as "vegetable cashmere" because it has an incredibly soft feel, luster and drape, with great durability. Its porous structure and grooves on the fiber surface keeps baby dry and warm — just what you'd want for your little one. And their designs — so eco-chic!

Filipina American Grace M. Welch had a "wiggly baby" — she could never get him in the right position on that rectangular diaper changing pad. Three babies later, Grace is the creator of the patented Patemm pad, a round diaper changing pad that you can fold up with one hand. Named after her first two children, Patrick and Emma, Patemm pads are made of washable oilcloth in 14 great prints that reflect her heritage.

ButtercupKids.com offers custom wrapping paper and a cute diaper cake, perfect for any party!
